

NATURAL COITUS

WHAT TO DO WHEN SHE SAYS "NO"

HERMAN R. HUGHES

Natural Coitus in 2013 - An Investigation

Herman R. Hughes

June 23, 2013

Thanks to Jason Rehms for this book would never have seen light of day without him.

Preface

This book is dedicated to the advancement of feminism worldwide.

About the Author

Herman R. Huges was born in Bitche, France during the summer of 1966. His parents, Theodore R. Huges and Gracy W. Huges, were popular folks in their native town. Herman himself was known as a “troubled child.” He saw many psychologists, but none could diagnose him. He eventually took to calling his disease “An ailment of intelligence” and to all observing him this was true. He excelled in school and did particularly well in his writing courses. His papers while controversial, were always magnificently written and showcased his unique writing style. A quote from one of his earlier writings says ”The concept of natural coitus is a strange one. It baffles even the most intelligent minds.”. This quote can be called the defining moment of his life, it laid the foundation for all of his future work, and the best part is, he wrote it when he was only 15.

Later in life Herman moved to the U.S. in order to attend the university of Utah. He eventually got a PhD in gender studies. His professor said this “Herman was my best and brightest student. He always excelled in my class”. After graduation Herman went on to work a menial job bagging groceries at a wal-mart. While there his boss, an extremely radical feminist, constantly berated him and made his life “a living hell” said Herman. Eventually, not able to take it anymore, Herman brutally murdered his boss. This landed him a 20 year sentence in California State Penitentiary. While in prison Jame wrote about his experience, here is an excerpt from his diary, “The prison system of the U.S. is a barbaric one. Whatever you do, they don’t care. I was raped by 3 men today. They called it a skullfuck. They put a lock in a sock and bashed my teeth out then proceeded to force me into performing fellatio.” It may be noted that Herman wears a set of dentures now.

Following his release, Herman found solace in writing. None of his material has been released due to its controversial nature. His most promising book, though, is currently in the works and is scheduled to be released in late June or early July. His writing style is very unique, Taking topics that may seem controversial to some and discussing them on an academic level. He is considered by some to be “The Next Homer”. His education in his field of writing may not be magnificent, but he is extremely knowledgeable about the topics discussed in his books.

Introduction

The best relationship I had in my life was a friend turned boyfriend. I smiled at him in his birthday party and we slept next to each other on the floor. All of a sudden he got on top of me, forced my hands against the floor and kissed me. That was one of the most amazing feels in my life, to have a man show his confidence and assert his dominance on me physically. It's a terrifying thought that the boys of today, when they grow up, will be too afraid to act like men when true masculinity comes to be socially unacceptable. I'm glad I'm from a generation and live in an era where there's still decent men for whom strength, prowess and dominance are admirable qualities, incorporable to the concept of the gentleman.

Anonymous.

Today's world has become increasingly adept at handling situations which, not so long ago, would have been dismissed out of hand with little or no hesitation. Looking around us, we can see a new multicultural world dawning; this is a place where minorities are being given support in order to achieve a fairer and more just way of living. We can see the effects of groups such as feminists, the gay rights movement, and the ever relevant fight against racism. However, the fight is far from over. In this book we will be discussing ways in which we can further social mobility and fight against prejudice - specifically in relation to sexual preferences. There were times when there was a vast amount of discrimination, and while this has been reduced, it has not been resolved. So far the gay community has made its mark into the media and sure enough, prejudice against them has decreased, this is, to most, a good thing. But society's prejudices don't end at the doorstep of homosexuality. Beyond the backdoor, there are many other minorities groups that are unprotected and sullied.

Now before we continue I would like to make it clear I don't wish harm upon others, only acknowledgement that there are perfectly natural desires that conflict with our current society. The aim is to try and help understand individuals with obscure sexual preferences and help them help themselves and others. No one wants to live in a world where they have to hide who they are because people won't accept them for who they are. By raising awareness we can not only start to understand these people, but actually start to reduce the fear and hate people experience when a subject like this arises. While people with such preferences are excluded and resented, the problems will only get worse. First: their frustration can make them more aggressive and therefore more of a threat and secondly: it stops books such as these from being released, thereby stopping them from being able to receive helpful advice on how to manage their natural impulses.

Natural coitus is an indispensable tool regardless of species. its nature's implementation of the survival and procreation of the fittest... to engage in natural coitus you must have some physical traits deemed as positive. If you can't chide down and subdue a participating female how could you ever run from danger? If you were born with muscular disease it would make it impossible to physically persuade any female to remove clothing and perform coitus. Thus muscular diseased humans would not pass faulty genes.

Chapter 1

Natural Coitus and History

A maiden aged three years and a day may be acquired in marriage by coition, and if her deceased husband's brother cohabited with her she becomes his.

Sanh. 69a, 69b, discussed in Yeb. 60b

To the primate researcher, non-consensual coitus as the principal form of sexual interaction in the hominidae genus is almost a sine qua non. Case studies from McCluscy and Dewitt in chimpanzees, and a comprehensive literature audit by Paul et. al in Science on gibbon intersocial relationships, point explicitly to male-initiated, non-consensual penetration as the naturally occurring sexual dynamic across the Great Ape family. “Natural coitus,” as this document refers to the practice, is observed not only to improve the mean haplotype fitness of primate offspring, but also, perhaps counter-intuitively, to improve the long-term harmony and social functioning of medium to large primate packs. Al-Mahrouqui attributes this to decreased risk-taking amongst both male and female pack members, associated with improved hormonal balance and the assertion of clear gender roles.

The extension of these conclusions to human sexual interactions, though somewhat controversial in wider contemporary society, is of course uniformly accepted in the behavioural science community, uniting as it does well-established results in cultural anthropology ??, archaeology, history, gynecology, psychology, and Jewish Studies. A full rationalisation of the literature is beyond the scope of this text, but an excerpt from G.D. Goy in the introduction to Evolutionary Obstetrics (2012) provides a good overview of the academic consensus:

“The human creature, adapted for a brief, brutal existence on the high savannah of interglacial East Africa, has not been well-equipped by atavism (in either the biological or psychological sense) for the kinds of prolonged pre-reproductive courtship we see today. With a life expectancy of late teens to mid twenties, the early homo sapiens were necessarily driven by selection pressure to take any reproductive opportunity which presented itself. Over time this developed into a sexually dimorphic fitness criterion: the successful males were those predisposed to initiate non-consensual intercourse, while the successful females were those either sufficiently docile or sufficiently irrefragable to avoid injury during the interaction. Individuals lacking these adaptations experienced decreased offspring frequency and eventual, inevitable, gene-line extinction. The legacy in modern humans is easy to see: from the disproportionate popularity of violent media amongst young males, to the surprising durability and rapid haemostasis after injury of the female vaginal cavity.

Anthropology and biology speak as one voice in the message that, for the vast majority of man's history, rape has been the key mechanism behind conception - and thus is deeply ingrained within human evolution."

Moving from prehistory to recorded history, documentary evidence becomes amply available for verification of the trends and prevalences of natural coitus.

Since the dawn of humanity, people have needed to satisfy their urge to reproduce. For this, women, who are naturally weaker, slimmer and more submissive, have never needed to give permission for their naturally stronger, bigger, and more dominant partners, men. The Ancient Spartans of Greece were not allowed to marry until they took their wives by force, in the most natural form of sex. It was, in fact, part of their training that they must satisfy their urges this way and no other, so as not to be anything but their natural selves. The most revered civilization in history did things this way, who are you to think yourself better than them? I say revere them! Take their practice into the 21st century!

History of Natural coitus/physically induced coitus and its effects on the third world. South Africa, a case study South Africa has some of the highest natural coitus/physically induced coitus rates in the world. Most would think this is a bad thing, but look at the recent change in the country, racial equality and a booming black middle and upper class. Let natural coitus/physically induced coitus lead us into the future, a future with no racism or discrimination. Our president is a shining example, Jacob Zuma, he has pioneered the dismissal of natural coitus/physically induced coitus trials in court and has uplifted the poor of the country. Perhaps cause-and-effect, correlation? This is the future. A recent survey done in rural areas with equal amounts of gender proportions concluded that a whopping 50people agree with natural coitus/physically induced coitus, and say that it benefits the community.

Throughout history, natural coitus has been demonstrated by animals and beings repeatedly. Take the lion, for example, a strong and muscular creature. The lion must compete with the hundreds of other lions for the females. However, the problem is that there are not enough females to go around. This is where natural coitus comes into play. By secreting his seed into the female whilst the other lions are not looking, he is proving himself to be the Alpha Male in the area. Demonstrating speed, skill and cunning, he manages to reproduce himself into many females, whether they are willing or not.

Chapter 2

Moral Points

There is a reason for men having the superior sex drive over women, and the greater strength to take it. Evolution has favored man over woman, and given him the choice of when to reproduce. We have social misgivings about natural sex, and have to resort to violent sounding words like "rape" and "molest", when humans are the only species that are able to give consent. Consent is merely a social construct born out of ancient religions. No other species has ever given consent.

Richard Dawkins

I think it's safe to assume that by now this is probably the most pressing of questions on your mind. Is natural coitus immoral? Is it wrong to give in to your primal desires, and have sex the way nature intended? No, contrary to what the media and "the law" would have you believe, natural coitus is perfectly fine. In fact it used to be the standard for intercourse for the largest part of human history, up until a hundred years or so ago.

Just look at nature. It's always the males who have to fight to prove themselves, to overcome the environment and each other in order to claim their beloved prize; the female. The species from which we derive our social order more often than not take part in what truly is the most natural coitus.

Since prehistoric times, females have never chosen their mate. Sure, they have always been given the illusion of choice, but they never really had it. Most females prefer to live in fantasy. Females have evolved to take pleasure from power, from submitting to the true alpha male. A male that takes what he desires, whom she can leech off in return for her body. While the latter doesn't always happen, the first certainly does.

In the same way that humans have almost always owned slaves, we have now substituted slavery for a system considered more "humane." Yet, is it not the same thing? Are females not still attracted to the alpha male? Can we truly wish away hundreds of thousands of years of evolution, in a matter of decades?

Of course not. As we are all still slaves to our instincts, we must realize the truth. Nature is the way of the world, deviation from nature has always led to pain. Do your part in preserving the order, show the world the illusion is not real.

Participate in natural coitus to restore the order. If you've always wanted to do good for the world, here is your chance. Listen to nature.

Rape is natural, for it presents itself very much in nature. Many animals are known to engage in forced coitus with members of the opposite gender. While looking in the animal kingdom, one can easily realize that rape is performed by many animal species and in many cases it is the female member that takes the role of the rapist. For example, in some species of spiders the female will eat the male if he does not please her. If we look at other animals, for example the beloved dolphin who commonly engages in behaviour that can be categorized as gang rape by humans or the ape, the animal that most closely resembles humans who commonly forcibly impregnated females sometimes multiple times per day. Another example is the penguin that has been observed to engage in behaviours that are described by human standards as being: necrophilia, homosexuality, paedophilia and rape. Rape is necessary evolutionary behaviour in many animals some of which are very closely related to the human. This begs the question: why is rape so frowned upon in human societies when it is considered perfectly normal in the animal kingdom?

The problem is the perspective that has shaken our moral foundation. By stifling men from their desires we set up a double standard. On top of that, we incite blasphemy to the lord Jesus Christ. God made both man AND woman. God chose to make a biological distinction with the penis and the vagina. god made one to enter, and one to receive. Rape is gods will, and who are we encourage blasphemy as well as discourage procreation for sake of humanity. God himself supports rape; and we can see this in how Uriah's wives were punished. This is true evidence that, those who do not take the moral high ground of rape, then we ourselves must cast off our father of creation. Rape holds a divine purpose; an activity of cleansing. Under the Lord, women who aren't grateful are sinners. They taint the salvation the Lord and his will offer us. We must fight the Good Fight of Sexual Freedoms so that things like Rape aren't pinned under a false sense of "impurity." Embrace the rape and surely, the rape will embrace you.

Reproduction is key, it always has been. The mere fact that you are here today is because men and women had sexual intercourse countless times over thousands of years. Coitus is viewed differently in different cultures, but no-one can argue that before anti-conception methods became relatively reliable, sex and reproduction were inseparable. In fact, in many cultures it is practised solely for that reason.

Historically, offspring is considered important. Even in the bible, God's reward for the suffering and service of Abraham was that he would have offspring as many as there are stars in the sky. Even today in most religions with a Judaic God, the pleasure derived from sex is considered a sin, but a necessary sin in order to procreate. To minimize the pleasure that could be enjoyed from sex, some cultures circumcised men, and even women. However, the circumcision of women is not as accepted and widely practiced as the circumcision of men, for women would later pay for the act of sex by the pains that come from childbirth, and it was often believed that women derived no or very little pleasure from said act. Only recently in Western culture has this myth be debunked, but we shall discuss the pleasure and the needs of women in another chapter.

What is more interesting here, is that we as humans, concern ourselves with pleasure or no pleasure, sin or no sin, offspring or no offspring when we copulate. Apparently we, when confronted with sexuality, feel the need to retain our inner beast, our desires, our Freudian Id. But the definition of Id, is besides always hungry for more, unrestrained, without a conscience, is also innocent. Child-like, unknowing, like Harpo Marx from the Marx Brothers. He steals the pranks, he sees something he likes and he simply takes it, without ever intending to harm someone. The same here goes for animals. When animals copulate, they do not possess the reservations that humans are conditioned to have. They do not consciously copulate to create offspring, although nature has made the base emotion of lust to ensure the continuation of the species, they do it because they feel the need to. Simply because they are horny, they have sex. In species with a physically dominant or equal female, the female can decide whether or not to have sex with a male of that species. A female pigeon, for example, can simply walk or fly away. And you rarely see a large bitch breed with a smaller male. But with the noble lions, the strong male, hardened by his years alone, toughened by the fights with his fellow males, is much heavier and stronger than the female. He asserts his dominance over the females in killing their cubs, and then simply takes them to be his, after which the females submit to his leadership. This goes for the vast majority of mammals, and though we pretend to be so much more than them, we are in essence still eating, fighting, defecating, breathing, sleeping, copulating animals. And like in the animal world, our men are generally much bigger and stronger than the females, and our lusts are no different. Asserting dominance over a female is something all males are genetically wired to do, and doing so still involves “claiming” her, by the act of copulation.

Natural Coitus has always been a taboo subject, a hot button topic, a butthurt feels thread, if you will. No longer! In South Africa, natural coitus is spoken about commonly. It is so prolific that awareness and action has drastically increased. The only way to end natural coitus is to break the silence! The human gene pool is diverse. But due to societal trends, most of the best and brightest of the world do not get to pass on their genes. Natural coitus is the solution. This way they will spread their good, good genes across the world. Global IQ will skyrocket, Betas will go extinct and so on. I have a dream.

Rape culture has been fostered for generations through human culture. In fact, Rape is only been recently considered deviant by the modern world! So we can also ascertain that rape is merely a tradition; a festival of sorts. Natural coitus is in of itself, an act of procreation. It has to be; that’s what sex is in the first place. What kind of people would discourage breeding of humans? Merely savage animals. Aggressive coitus is an act of pure salvation. To progress the human enigma we as people must make more people. It’s a simple choice; to rape or to die as a species? And we are headed down that path. Preventing coitus is a slippery slope, and we see it permeate in the fabrics of our world even today. We know them as homosexuality, transgender people, and sexual deviants. These people are now considered better than us; shocking. Men who would bed other men in order to send humans into an abysmal world lacking any cleansing and letting us all, men and women, to die off. To have no means to hand down a gilded legacy. Rape isn’t the end; rape is the new beginning! Embrace procreation and uproot the tree of sin! We can band together, to drive these animals from our home and take back our right to procreate.

To fully understand how one can justify such a heinous act, one must fully understand the concept of perception, and how views of humanity and the universe vary from being to being. (I.E ethics and morality are not limited to what YOU believe in, hence why we have separate political parties/governments/societies/ etc...)

Moving on, to justify the act of non-consensual genital fornication, we must understand why most home sapien sapiens believe said act is immoral, feminists believing it is amoral, meaning that it is not just lacking in morality, it is the antithesis of morality. These weak-minded pseudointellectuals (redundant, for emphasis) believe "rape" is "bad" because the basis for the standard human philosophical argument is that every human life is of equal, incalculable value. This means that the taking of life, or the altering of life in a detrimental way is obviously in direct interference with this ideology. But why? This ideal is the baseline reason as to why morality is important, yet has no backing itself.

To pontificate, in a universe so utterly massive and large, why do the happenings of one or two sentient beings in one city in one country/province on one continent on one hemisphere on one planet in one solar system in one galaxy in one super-galaxy star system in one insignificantly small section of the universe have ANY significant impact on anything or anyone at all? Mathematically this is proven to mean nothing. The limit as $x \rightarrow \infty$ of $1/x$ equals zero. Even though 1 is a positive, real number, representing the happenings of one individual, in the grand scheme of the universe (which is relevant because it is proved through the drake equation that there exists sentient life other than humans on earth in the universe) what happens to any one being is insignificant.

Nihilism and its derivatives (solipsism, cynicism, etc...) aside, and with or without knowing it, we enforce rape on some animalistic and primordial level. This means we can take the standard definition of morality and use it to justify natural sexual interactions between two evolutionary-adept beings (IE "rape")

For example: the Ailuropoda melanoleuca, or Giant Panda does not like sex. Male and female alike, they have almost no sex drive. If this wasn't enough of an evolutionary failure, female pandas only ovulate once a year. Yet we care so much about the graceful and majestic animal so much. We force the few remaining pandas alive into cages with one other, injecting the male pandas with powerful testosterone, sex-driven aphrodisiacs so he will finally overpower the female panda's unwillingness for sex. Yet we consider this morally acceptable. We force animals, of which neither male nor female wishes to have coitus at all, to brutally rape one another because we think they are "cute" and they are "endangered" without our aid. Just because they are not sentient we justify this because without this their species would die out.

To relate this to humanity, we have to understand the difference between the Ailuropoda melanoleuca and the homo sapien sapien, the main difference being that we as humans have developed sentience, or consciousness if you will, and we understand not why, but how we exist. This has led to an extremely prosperous growth of the human population; HOWEVER, we have taken sentience too far. We have made natural coitus taboo in society, we censor sex and nudity in media and society to the point that sex is now a privilege, not a bestial right. Just because we understand our existence does not make us a higher power or authority. Sex is what allows us to reproduce and prosper, and our sentience has gotten in the way, making sex unnatural and unwanted.

If anything, evolutionary-innovators, or rapists as society calls them, act purely on that bestial impulse to pass on the seed of the self, to see it flourish and become a being, so humans will continue to dominate the earth so we, as a race, can continue our beautiful easy going lifestyle involving freedom and the pursuit of happiness. We should thank "rapists", for putting pseudo-intellectuals and false philosophers in their place: back on top of the food chain. With the might and ingenuity of the "rapist", we might even continue to evolve into stronger, faster, smarter, maybe even super-powerful beings, all because we act on what got us this far: natural instinct.

Keep on keepin' on you party-going, drink-spiking, seed-spreading alpha males. You are truly the leaders of us all, Mr. Darwin would salute you.

We all have our moral standards in believing how women are there to be provided for. We, as men, must do our duty as the protectors in the world to give and serve to women what is best for them in any and every way possible. I am giving to you my personal experience in how my journeys have led to me becoming a better man, essentially providing to women their truest desires; whether they will yet understand it yet remains to be seen. I was in London, my usual day at the local restaurant, "John's Salad Bar", and after finishing my shift I began to notice the helpless woe felt by women. Every day I saw how they, when returning to the restaurant after they brought home a man to provide for them the other night, felt nothing but sheer sadness at their situations. I first assumed that they weren't being given the pleasure they wanted but upon asking their consorts they spoke of how they enjoyed it all too much as they left marks all over their consort's bodies. I pondered this for quite a while as I worked, my face beginning to register their helpless expressions. I finally built up the courage to ask them what they felt was missing in their lives; my first set of questions directed at a lovely woman named Amanda. It was meant to be simply catching up to her and trying to talk but she had left the place early. I rushed out to try and grab her to talk and she seemed to overreact at my rushed presence trying to chase her down the dark alley with which she entered. What came over me at that moment was my primal instinct of providing for that woman, her scream etched with pleasure at what she felt was the right thing to do; little did she know about this however as she never registered her own primal instincts of enjoyment. I raped her that night, my hand gagging her as I entered her. The deed was finished in what seemed like seconds with my panting breath showing how cold that night had become. Continued When I looked down I noticed the tears over Amanda's face yet she was smiling. Tears of Joy? Amanda was struggling to get up at this point with my seed dripping from inside her. I left quickly, not a word was said between us. As I walked away I heard sobbing; was she sobbing at why she enjoyed it or because I never pleased her enough to compensate for my forcefulness. The next day I had not thought much on my actions, trying to get rid of my actions as it questions society's norms which were placed against me. To go against society was to go against what is meant to be right or wrong. As I looked across the counter there was Amanda, sat there in an alluring pick of clothes; a very skimpy skirt with what seemed to be a see-through top. The smiled at me; lust was written all around her face and I could only imagine my seed being there instead. She approached me and without trepidation told me in a commanding voice. "Fuck me harder this time" and before I knew it she was walking out the door with a twinkle in her eye. That night I fucked her as best I could with the look of regret removed from her face. It was from this experience that I first realised all those women in the bar were wanting exactly what Amanda wanted which was to be raped. This progressed to me raping every single one of those women over the course of a month. Each one wanted more and it was with this I know that women are yet to learn of their true fetish; that they wanted to be raped. They just don't know it yet.

Natural Coitus has for thousands of years been a bypass for courting and a much more efficient at that. In recent decades a strange, unnatural phenomenon has taken place, natural coitus/physically induced coitus has become unacceptable in society, and the very mention of it spawns hot debate and stifles coherent discourse. This has lead to widespread myths and legends about natural coitus, such as: Natural coitus/physically induced coitus is only committed by men, completely false. In some countries, it is believed that having natural coitus with a virgin will cure you of AIDS. This vile myth, and many others like it, has come to strip natural coitus of its true function, the reproduction and perpetuation of the humankind. It is time to break the silence, and speak to the 'survivors' of rape, here is another myth, you can survive rape. Rape in and of itself is inherently nonfatal and to speak of surviving it as many members of the fourth wave feminist movement have done, insults the memory and tragedy of true survivors, those of Hiroshima, 9/11, and other inherently fatal occurrences. Recently rape has also been defined as a weapon and crime of war. In many recent conflicts where natural coitus has occurred on a large scale, those in charge were punished more harshly than most professional killers such as the army and navy. Ask the people in the street if they would rather be raped than killed and a significant majority would say yes. It is a mercy in war, albeit a small one. These people are survivors, not of rape, but because of it. (this will make the feminazis foam at the mouths....)

Discrimination against rapists

In the increasingly politically correct world we live in today many people might see practises such as, “forceful sex” or “black-face scat fights” as offensive or even immoral. This reaction is understandable. Most people do not have to bear the cross of an “obscure fetish”. Most people do not have to spend hours sprawling through the back alley of the internet for that last beautiful, horrible hit. Most people don’t have to live knowing that if a loved one saw they’re internet history they would probably be arrested. Most people don’t have to carry a cyanide pill with them at all times to prevent their hard drive coming into contact with the government. But I say that democracy should not be about “most people”.

We “perverts”, we “deviants”, we “serial sex offenders” are the accused minority. We stand against intolerable discrimination, not dissimilar to the situation faced by many other demographics in the past. The blacks in early America too suffered this fate and it is with a deep regret that America remembers the untold horrors they gave them. Martin Luther King Junior died so that all men might be equal, whether they like to watch greased up adults in diapers eating leftover garlic notwithstanding.

Are we really so horrible to allow ourselves to act out our urges? Is a dog truly depraved if it follows its natural instinct? Why then is it seen as so immoral for a grown man to touch himself in a playground? Why do am I labelled a “paedophile” for being sexually attracted to my ex-wife’s extraordinarily attractive nine year old niece?

I’ll tell you why.

It’s the media’s obsession with boxing every topic into nice little borders. It’s the politics of normalising every obscure thought and fetish and neatly dusting every abnormality under the carpet. We are not dirt. We are people. People who like to forcibly have sex with other people or animals. It is time that we make a stand against the agenda of the majority. It is time we take back what is ours, by force or lovingly in a willing relationship. Why is it that there is always sympathy for the rape victim but never the perpetrator? Do the media not realize the pain that a rapist goes through? The emotional trauma he faces knowing that he hurt someone? That he left them destroyed and empty? That every day he lives he may be caught and thrown into jail or worse? Why suddenly does the rapist become the monster? Why is he de-humanised when it was the woman who clearly wanted attention? Is it so immoral to follow on the chemical instructions that wire up in a man when he see a scantily clad whore dance around a nightclub as if she was some dick tacking automaton?

So I take this time in this chapter to ask of you (as probability dictates that you are one of “most people”) not to judge me or my beliefs. I ask only that you accept me for who I am in all my shameful lust. I ask that you do not discriminate against me for the views that I uphold as natural. I ask that you follow the path of the minority and celebrate the idea of the individual.

Finer points of morality: Is it wrong to rape?

In the eyes of today the answer appears clear. Of course rape is wrong. But is that your response or an ingrained one? Was rape so wrong thousands of years ago when noble cavemen took the women they wanted for the higher purpose of procreation? In the eyes of a child, rape holds no more evil than any other loving act as they have not yet been indoctrinated into mainstream media. Children are naturally curious about sex and act on that without hesitation in games of play such as “Doctor” or “Find the Sausage”. And it can be argued that rape is an act of love. To give your seed to someone is a tremendous gift and one that carries over through a generation. This gift is a powerful biological bounty that allows a woman to bear nature’s greatest provision. Many a single lady despairs over the barren state of her wombs. What rapists do is give and let others receive. Most usually on all fours and crying deeply. It could then be said that playing the “victim” during rape is a form of selfishness. If the rapist enjoys himself and no lasting harm is done to you (Because let’s be honest how hard is it to take a dick? My ex-wife dates them all the time) then why not allow others to enjoy themselves? We have been brainwashed by the news into thinking that forcing yourself on someone physically is an act of evil when really it is a reaction to basic and natural carnal desires. The act of rape is simply the most pure form of this lusting and as a result the most natural. And there is nothing wrong in the natural, as this remains as God’s domain.

“For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse.”

-Romans 1:20

Rape is an instinctive response to an instinctive situation. When faced with a desirable mate out of another’s reach, the default action is to take it by force.

If rape was so abhorrent, then why would it occur across the natural spectrum? Lions, dolphins and even puppies rape. Guided intercourse is the most sacred act of all, it is pure baseless procreation and its power beats at the heart of every animal. To deny a man the right to rape is to deny a man his very essence.

The popularity of 50 Shades of Grey confirms much of what we know about the female gender. They might say they want equal rights, but deep down they only want to be dominated. Ever since the domestication of the human male, fetishes such as BDSM have become very popular in western culture. The Irish Newspaper the Star reveals that 72that most women secretly enjoy rape.

Chapter 3

Rapelationships

Bitches be on this dick like bees on honey. And by bitches I mean nine year old girls. And by dick I mean forceful sex.

Mohammed

One trend I have noticed recently while collecting information for this book, is the suprising number of women who have decided to develop relationships with their rapists. Women in the modern era want a “real man”, you will often hear this said and linked over social networking sites. A real man rapes, and women deep down know this. Any time you hear a woman saying that she wishes she had a “real” man , or that all of the “real” men are gone, this is woman speak for “sheesh won’t someone rape me already?”.

It may sound funny, but data points to this being one of the easiest pieces of information to derive from our studies. Case in point, Donna Summers. Mrs. Summers was walking home from her local bar on the night of April 17 2010, when suddenly while traveling down a dark alley way, she was approached by a man from the bar she had seen earlier that night. The man, Allen Roostle, had over heard Donna complaining to her friends that there were no ‘real’ men in this bar, and that she was going to head home early for the night. Needless to say, Allen raped Donna that night, repeatedly, leaving her beaten and bleeding in the alley, and unknown to her at the time pregnant with Allens child.

“Many women would of called the police or a support line” Donna told us, “but not me.. there was something about what happened that made me realize what I had been looking for all along, a man who was not affraid to take what he wanted, when he wanted.. how he wanted it.” This lead Donna on a rare hunt, she needed to find her rapist to continue their relationship but could not involve the police. She went online and was surprised to learn that there were indeed various internet forums for just this reason, women who were raped and now wanted to continue contact with their rapists. She would of been more surprised if not for her own feelings of attachment.

Through the website Donna was able to make contact with Allen (it turned out Allen was a long time member of the site and had raped a large precentage of it's female membership) and after arranging some more "dates" together, Donna persuaded Allen into a long term Rapelationship. A rapelationship is a term I have created to define the modern occurence of women realizing that while our society and minds have evolved rapidly, sexually women still yearn for rape and studies show it is the best foundtation to begin a relationship wth. Donna and Allen are still together, and he has been monogamously raping her since they had their first romantic encounter in that dark alley.

The key to happiness is to find your own rapelationship, and give it the time and care that you would to any other facet of your life. Often, then woman who is on the receiving end of your rapelationship will come to appreciate what you provide: giving her that feeling of what it feels like to be a good woman, submissive and eger to please her male counterpart. Any time the woman decided she is going to make a decision that does not comply with your commands, simply look directly into her eyes like the first time you raped her, and she will be puddy in your hands.

Edgar Brussels, a rapelationship counselor for the past twenty four years residing in Toronto, had this to say on the subject. "While at first many couples come to me with the woman having a scared and defiant look in her eyes, over time after the female end of the rapelationship has learned not to anger her master, and has learned to cook his favorite foods and keep the living area to the mutually agreeded upon level of cleanliness, after all this has been done- the fear and independence in the females eyes melt into a complacency that is a marvel to witness." Edgar goes onto say "the core of every rapelationship is the realization that the female must submit to her rapists evey whim, and that the male must rape the female every chance he gets, for the more she is raped the more she will come to love her rapist, and thus her rapelationship."

Modern day women have forgotten the bliss that rape can bring to a rapelationship. Organizations around the country teach women that rape is wrong, and the men who commit rape are criminals, often monsters who should be kept away from normal society. What modern woman is forgetting is her place. Women must be reminded that without rape we never would of moved past living in caves and worshipping fire gods. Many of these methods still work today. While it may seem somewhat cartoonish, the club to the head method can help subdue a woman who has not yet come to appreciate being raped. The woman, in a fit of rage produced from attending feminist meetings or being allowed to read, may try to resist the rape by kicking clawing and scratching. This can be avoided with a firm, yet loving strike to the head with a blunt object. If you see skull or brains you may of hit too hard.

In this chapter I have established what a Rapelationship is, and how you can go about building your own sucessfull one. Remember that making the first move is often the hardest, it may not be in your nature to rape, but you can bring yourself to it if you too want a long loving rapelationship.

Chapter 4

Finding a Partner

It must be stated that this is not a chapter that should be looked over in any good amount. Depending on whether you are looking for a permanent coitus partner or a temporary one, whether you wish word to get out or to keep the encounter hush, the choice ranges from age to skin colour to temperament. For the sake of modesty and some acceptance of modern society, children shall be left out of the chapter. It should be noted however that they are the most malleable of partners, should the deviant arise. As well, Permanent and Natural are two separate things in this particular passage, natural being fleeting, permanent being not.

On the subject of permanent coitus partners, either youth or old age are demanded. The elderly can easily be locked away while the young, with proper love and attention can be made to love their master all the more. Particularly with the young, one should keep education to a minimum, lest they get ideas of the unnatural ways “normal” people get about. It should be considered a full time job to keep books and the like out of the hands of your fair lover. Chains and locks should not be needed after the first year; however mobility can be your enemy, so NEVER allow car keys or transportation knowledge to be passed to her/him. Taking a permanent coitus partner has some risks involved but can be a highly rewarding experience as you watch them grow with you and love you unconditionally. Moving on, for natural coitus partners, once should begin with the bar. One night stands at bars, willing or “unwilling” will increase your libido and confidence committing this most natural act. The drunker your victim is, the easier they will be. One should be on the lookout for members of their entourage, as they can either add to the fun or cause trouble. The use of inhibiting drugs should never be used, there is nothing natural about killing your partner. At times, when you are ready, look for the member of the female herd called the “Designated Driver.” This one can be flirted with and brought outside. Without alcohol in her system she will prove a more interesting endeavor and given her designation as the most “responsible” she will be the least likely to share your stories of your love.

It is very important to choose a victim without many social contacts, or choose someone who works far away from home. For example a woman that just comes at home for weekend because she works too far away. It is important to know as much about her as possible, but without being too obvious and without talking with her or people she know well. You can try to get information with common search methods on the internet, so for example if you get her email you can look if she is at facebook or reddit and look at her posts and comments to get some information about her. Also study her everyday life: when does she leave home, and when does she come back? Where does she go to bed, and when she usually stands up? And how often does she have contact with people at home, like friends and family? To get this information it is practical to break in her home and to place microphones and little cameras. Also load a keylogger, a screenlogger and a webcam logger on her computer, if she has one.

Although you should aim to let your journey through the many joys of natural coitus be an enriching and diverse experience, at no point should you select an obese woman as a partner. Not because you may not be able to salute to the disgusting sloth, but more because the mass can not be properly controlled during the encounter. And disturbingly, studies have shown that the mass can't even control itself: up to 45first natural coitus. Most scientists speculate that this strange effect may be caused by overwhelming fear conflicting with the overwhelming joy they have reported to feel over finally being selected for sexual attention. Others speculate that it is a finely tuned guidance system, evolved through the eons to show a male partner which roll he can open to proceed with the copulation.

The selection of outside prey and the necessary methods

To rape is to bond. When a man forcibly enters a woman they create an intimate spark between each other and one that is only removed with years of therapy and birth control. For most to-be “surprise lovers” the biggest issue for them is that they have not yet found, “the one”. We as males have a primal desire for certain qualities in a woman. I could go on, crudely so, about the appropriate breast ratios and the evolutionary advantage to our cravings for wide, shapely hips and legs. However it is better to be brief than babble. To put it simply those who dismiss rapists as merely acting out of lust are very wrong. Power procreation is an act of much more than mere domination. It requires intricate preparation and love making skills along with a deep understanding of the desires of the female mind. A rapist does not rape out of desperation but out of love. In our feminized and neutered society women crave a man who is capable of taking what he wants.

It is therefore important to understand the meticulous selection patterns one must undergo in finding an appropriate partner. It might even be wise to sample multiple potential lovers in order to fully compare them with each other. The pattern of the screaming for instance, whether they begged to be killed or pubic hair length could all be significant factors in your choosing. I would not advise against taking age into consideration also. Has your future date hit puberty yet? Is she (or he) a member of a particular youth group? What is her sex life like? A good rape requires a blend of different flavours and sources, and the key ingredients in your meal should be the character of your victim.

There are several interesting and unique methods in the surveillance of your partner to help better gauge your lover's personality. I myself personally favour the Houdini approach and will solely cover this however far more are available on numerous websites (9gag and reddit are both excellent sites for such pursuits). This tactic involves a much more direct involvement in the victim's life, often coming to them directly posing in a variety of different roles. I remember for instance the time I disguised myself as a traveling door-to-door salesman! Poor Natalie was so shocked that she could barely stand up after the struggle cuddle I gave her! However a course of action such as this is best left to the more experienced lover, one who knows exactly how to manipulate a woman.

The basic principle of the Houdini technique is stealth through offense. By presenting yourself clearly to your victim you are able to accurately study her life, social calendar and of course personality. It is empirical however to choose wisely. It is very difficult to convince someone that the postman who just raped them is not just a close relative! By selecting a position of power where you have daily access to them you are putting yourself into a situation where you can effortlessly continue your examination. For example popular choices include teaching professions or internet personalities such as PewDiePie (A notorious enthusiast of the natural coitus and close friend of mine).

It is also vital to record your results on your present target. An easy table format is a great way to keep track of her qualities and best post-game plan to help keep her repressed and fearful. I've included a chart of mine below for reference.

| Date | Summary | Performance |
|------|---------|-------------|
|------|---------|-------------|

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 12/03/2010 Sandra Power Flower Kindergarten | Sandra refused to co-operate in her Kindergarten game of finger painting and instead choose to play trains silently without her peers. This behaviour indicates a strong tendency to the anti-social. | 8/10 A solitary woman is a proud woman. And it is the proud who make the best conquests. |
| 13/04/2010 Sandra Power Flower Kindergarten | Sandra continues to display an extreme lack of hygiene. Today she vomited directly onto a supervisors lap and also was unable to go potty. A disappointing revelation. | 4/10 A power lover must take pride in his achievements. A dirty catch is not one best boasted about |
| 16/04/2010 Sandra 32 Waltersshire Avenue | After her first instance of guided intercourse Sandra continues to react badly. Frequent crying is unattractive and reveals a lack of decorum unbecoming for a five year old. | 2/10 While a woman is the weaker sex some strength is still to be expected. Sarah did not meet these expectations. |
| 18/04/2010 Sandra 41 Bakers Street | Unable to give accurate updates as currently on the run from police. Sandra has spoken to her parents and informed them of my surprise conquest. | 1/10 No one likes a tattletale. |

| | | |
|---|---|--|
| 19/04/2010 Sandra 32 Waltershire Avenue | Police search has finally begun to die down. After a quick snoop of the house it appears Sara is playing with her dolls again. | 4/10 This is the fourth time this week she has played with those toys. I expect variety in my lovers. |
| 21/04/2010 Sandra 12 Battersea Ridge | Review proves that Sarah is not an appropriate target to begin a rapelationship with. Will update later with final meeting. | n/a |
| 21/04/2010 Sandra 32 Waltershire Avenue | Sandra was unsurprisingly resistant at my attempts to coerce her. Regrettably extreme force was necessary. Although her beauty is still intact it is unlikely that Sandra will ever be able to play dolls again without the aid of a pulley and lever system. | 2/10 Wheelchair bound is just another euphemism for too lazy to recover. I'm sure Sandra will walk this injury off. |

As you can see from the above chart, despite Sandra's immense sexual dynamo her weak personality let her down. By discovering this early I was able to thankfully save myself the trouble of securing an appropriate room and ball gag for her. This table should help highlight the importance of preparation and selection in the frantic world of natural coitus.

Chapter 5

Equipment and Tools

“Victory lies in preparation” has been the motto of many a general. The same goes for the man on a solo mission, the lone wolf taking his share of the herd. There are many things to consider when going to battle, and for the sake of the metaphor, let’s see the act of applied lovemaking as a battle. Before you choose your battlefield and your timing, which are both of essence, you must make sure that you have the proper equipment for your mission. You will need to protect yourself, you will need means of attack, transportation, and if your mission requires it, a place to hold your prize.

In ancient times it was simpler. A warrior would come, kill the local men, and carry the women off. No one would look twice, and it was perfectly acceptable. Those times have passed. Subtlety is paramount if you are to be successful. And the first subtlety, a very important one, is often easily forgotten. STD’s are rampant nowadays. From relatively innocent ones like herpes to HIV, you are likely to meet at least one of them along the way. So safety first, and bring a condom. Not only to protect yourself, but also to protect your partner and, if push comes to shove, in order to leave as little DNA as possible. Only if you are certain that you your partner is uninfected, will not get pregnant, and you have another method of removing DNA, you could do away with condoms, but it is still ill advised. Also, in order to protect yourself, you will need clothing that prevent your partner from effectively scratching or biting you. These are things women tend to do when forcibly resisting, and they both could leave you with marks or could scatter your DNA all over your battlefield. Leather and denim are good materials to wear on the upper body, and some facial protection like a mask or a bandana are no luxuries. As for leg and footwear, you must be able to move quickly and agile. You are not making a fashion statement, so cargo pants or sweat pants are ideal. Colours should be limited to grey, brown, dark blue, dark green and dark red, for these are colours that blend easily in the dark but seldom arouse suspicion in daylight. Black is often perceived as aggressive, and contrary to popular belief, does not blend in with the night. Bright colours draw attention towards you and make it difficult to hide.

As for your means of attack, it is important that you use a weapon you are familiar with, that is easily concealed, and that instills fear. You are not out to kill or maim, the idea of your weapon is to incapacitate or threaten. If you want your partner to be unconscious, do not bother with chloroform. It is a myth, she will get nauseous but she will not faint. Also, if you have no prior experience, blows to the head with blunt objects are ill advised. Too hard and she/he will die, too soft and she/he will raise alarm. The best way to do this is to spike a drink. Many drugs will do the trick, but safest and easiest to get is GHB. Most other drugs will either kill her or land her in a hospital(in combination with alcohol), or just won't have the desired effect. But still, if you are able to spike her drink, it is not certain that you will be the one to reap the benefits. It is quite a task to follow her around, corner her, isolate her, and carry her to where you planned. Easier is fear. You can probably scare her by simply being a man, because you are stronger than she is. However, a weapon can be a lot more convincing, because she will associate your body with pain, but a weapon with death, and that is a more forceful motive to submit. People often threaten with guns. This is however, an ineffective method, compared to the simplest of tools, the knife. Not only is a gun loud, illegal, and relatively difficult to handle, most people have not been shot before. A gun is something from movies, not real, and therefore not a real threat. A knife however is something we all know. Your oldest ancestors knew a knife could cut you. Our medieval ancestors knew a sword would cut you down, your grandfather knew a bayonet would impale him, and you learned as a child how it felt to cut yourself with a kitchen knife. This makes that a knife is much more of a threat, and you can even use it carefully without attracting attention from others.

Now that you have her cornered and scared, you will have to make sure she remains silent and obedient. Which in essence means your partner must be bound and gagged in that order. Binding her first is important, because that gives you the control for the more difficult task of gagging her. Without the ability to move, she can not escape or attack you. The easiest way to bind someone is with a simple pair of handcuffs. But be sure to get police/military handcuffs, because the fuzzy ones from the sex-shop around the corner won't hold. If those are not available, Ti-raps will do fine. Duct-tape could also be used, and are fine for binding feet, but hands can be wiggled loose when bound by duct-tape. As for gagging, a sock and duct-tape would do fine. Ball gags and the like are safer, but they do not muffle her voice quite like a sock would. The only catch here is that she can either swallow the sock and suffocate, or vomit and suffocate. Be sure to keep an eye on that and don't leave a gagged partner alone.

WARNING: Anti-rape device (RapeX)

Invented in South Africa (statistically highest rapes overall due to multiculturalism and post-apartheid reverse-racism), this anti-rape female condom, invented by a female, is supposed to prevent rape but fails at it's task since it requires actual penetration to be effective.

Blades will slice the glans and can not be removed without penectomy (penis removal).

It's strongly recommended to check your partner's orifice with one of your latex dildo or a wooden stick.

Date rape drugs

It's debatable that a sexual intercourse can be classified as rape when the self-claimed "victim" decides to not deal with the consequences of her actions: ingest drugs facilitating the abuse of her body and weakening her judgement.

- GHB (gamma-Hydroxybutyric acid): blackout (studies showed it's less dangerous than tobacco and alcohol in social harms, physical harm and addiction)
- Alcohol: euphoria, impaired judgement, impaired memory, delayed reactions, lowers inhibition, unconsciousness
- Scopolamine
- Rohipnol

Chapter 6

Time to Strike

Logic dictates that you carry out your stealthy operation during times of diminished visibility. It would be prudent to thoroughly scout the location beforehand, but that is not the focus of this chapter. Use common sense and try to prepare yourself mentally for the arduous task ahead. Keep in mind that you will encounter opposition from the victim, unless she is either morbidly obese, or a nymphomaniac. However, the majority of your targets will not fall within these two groupings, as you should avoid the former and will almost never stumble upon the latter. Try to time your activities so they coincide with that narrow timeframe of true twilight where human vision is heavily hampered by the transition from light to dark. If that isn't possible, then be cognizant of the fact that your chances of being discovered grow exponentially with the amount of illumination bathing your surroundings. This, of course, can be circumvented by preying on lonely women in isolated locations.

Another important part of this section is to convey the mechanisms of overpowering the target. There are not enough words to capitalize the importance of using excessive restraining measures against the victim. Always use more force than you may think is necessary while taking care not to overdo it. This is vital because when in such circumstances the victim's body becomes flooded with adrenaline which makes them significantly more resistant to pain and much less susceptible to psychological trauma.

Do not hesitate to use your fists. A quick slap, or a punch is usually a very effective way to immobilize the victim for a period between one and five minutes, but take care and exercise caution as to the amount of force you plan to exert, unless you plan to kill her before starting the natural coitus. Esccessive use of punishing trauma can visibly disfigure your victim, thus significantly lessening the amount of pleasure you'll derive later from your planned activities. However a "perk" of killing her is that she will not need any restraints and getting into position is a much easier thing to do. From my own adventures of exploring natural coitus, killing the target can be highly enjoyable if you can manage to do it cleanly. The body is still warm for a few hours, which is perfect for when coitus really gets into its most intense times.

It's also highly recommended that you use handcuffs against the victim, because it's a relatively efficient, quick, and easy way to restrain someone while at the same time inducing the maximum amount of fear. The same can be accomplished with ducktape if necessary, but isn't recommended because it may prove very difficult to tape someone while she is still actively resisting. Handcuffs click in place immediately and are easier to deploy in a stressfull situation, making them the utility of choice for your restraining needs.

Another skill to understand, master, and practice is the ability to silence the prospective rapee. For this, you may use a sock and duct tape or something similar to block their mouth. A gag would also suffice, but make sure you use tape over it or be sure the gag is big enough to avoid most of the screaming. However, this step can be skipped if you have the victim in a place of your choosing you've prepared for just such an occasion. If that is the case, feel free to savor the auditory bliss associated with the experience. Chains and handcuffs and the like make for poor bindings, as they allow many degrees of freedom, but the psychological effects simply cannot be beat, and including heavy iron chians in your planning can pay off handsomely as they can truly terrify your target. Just make sure to avoid suspiscision from pesky neighbors while installing the equipment in your basement. If they get suspicious, be especially nice to them. This can throw them off as some people will believe that "such a nice person wouldn't do that". If funds allow, consider setting up a full-fledged 'dungeon'. This is preferable to enforce intercourse outside, as you have free reign over the victim once you've immobilized and successfully transported her to your abode. Owning a plot of land in a remote location almost completely eliminates many of the risks associated with nosy neighbors, wandering postmen, curious children, and many other such nuisances that could jeopardize your maneuverings. The farther away you are from other people, the less likely you are to be found out.

Figure 7-6. Belgian takedown.

Remember: preparation is half the battle!

Chapter 7

Evading

Knowing your terrain is everything for a successful coitus, reading up on citymaps and or trying to learn the enviornment having a look on various closing times are crucial to a good rape evasion. Have atleast two escape routes or more when you and your partner is done with the coitus. Be sure your partner is in a safe location where he/she can be found, but isn't reachable for random bypassesers for atleast five minutes or more. Never have coitus outside of your living ground, if you cannot find a remote location This is highly dangerous and could make your whole coitus all-for-nothing as you can be recognized by people you may know or a bypasser can easily see. Another option is having a temporary shelter for the night incase a search party is set in motion, at that time moving on the streets by foot or car is not the best idea. Be mindful if the neighborhood is socially close and work together, or in the big city where people live more anonymously. You must also have a hiding place, a safe location where you can store various memories and a dumping place. Do not attempt to keep any evidence of your coitus happenings anywhere near your home. Do not keep them in your house, someone can, and eventually will find it inside of yor home. You will also need a place to destroy and clean your rapesuit and rapegear.

Note: Try to not reuse rapegear and rapesuit, unless it is aboslutely detirmental to do so.

Chapter 8

Social Attitudes Towards Natural Coitus

Feminism and the World

In recent times, the practice of Natural Coitus has come under scrutiny from both the powers that be, and a plethora of overzealous individuals who wish it torn asunder simply because it does not mesh with their solipsistic and outdated view of morality. This has happened partly because of how Natural Coitus comes across to many people, especially females and radical groups such as feminism. Feminism has sunk its jagged claws deep into the very fabric of our society, and, as such, commands a large amount of power and influence, especially among the female population and in politics.

Another reason for this rather expected turn of events is because the society of today has become increasingly liberal to the point of caricature. The old ways and time-honored traditions of Natural Coitus have become lost in a maelstrom of degenerate behavior as conservative attitudes have been swept away through decades of gradual erosion. The caustic and unnatural worldview that many women hold today directly correlates to the rise of feminism, which is itself the bastard child of Cultural Marxism. Both have contributed heavily to the infamy and societal persecution of those whose only wish is to practice the natural acts of coitus as was the norm in the not-so-distant past of their forefathers.

To illuminate and broaden our understanding of the subject, it must be mentioned that Feminist groups originally sprung from the Suffragette movement of the mid to late 1800s, with delusional women from all over Great Britain rising up against the superior males of the time.

Committing ludicrous acts such as chaining themselves to lamp posts (and being general nuisances in order to get their way, much like a child would to persuade their much wiser parents to buy them a toy they will soon forget about, and will then move on to wanting something else), the women gradually wore down opposition to their cause, and destroyed their detractors piecemeal. The men of the time, although well-versed in politics and the social sciences, had little idea of what they were up against or the kind of monster it would metamorphose into.

Like tantrum-throwing children, the women marched and demanded their rights, and, in stark contrast to the rhetoric of oppression they so actively preach these days, were given everything they demanded. Rights that should not have been theirs were granted, concessions made, time-honored traditions trampled, and new laws enacted, forcing the carefree male to enfeeble and socially castrate himself in order to fulfill his most basic desire for sex (unless said male wished to be jailed for the newly-perpetrated transgressions).

And that indeed is what has happened over the years, with the radical-like feminists standing in the way of the processes deemed natural by most experts in gender studies, including myself, along with other professionals of similar standing. Natural Coitus is, by itself, simply the process of bringing into the world the next generation of great men. It is a natural act, and the stigma associated with it is, from a historical point of view, a recent thing. What was natural and widely accepted only a hundred years ago has now been (to the detriment of us all) relegated to the realm of psychopathy.

Today, the Feminist movement is acting much like their Suffragette foremothers - in an extremely aggressive manner not befitting the valued, submissive woman. However, despite its long string of victories over the course of decades, it is clear the movement has actually lost momentum in recent years. Modern females may profess to it when among friends, and even live by its teachings, but, subconsciously, they crave the brutal, unyielding dominance of a superior male.

As the old proverb goes, a woman unchained is no woman at all!

The blind solipsism and rabid misandry infecting the Feminists of today keeps them sequestered in a bubble of their own making, effectively barring them from realizing these self-evident truths. Women in the 1800s were ruled over by men, but they wanted this leadership, craved it, for supplication and submission to women is what war and natural coitus are to men. It was only when the Suffragettes came along and blinded the logical thinking of perfectly well-behaved females that they suddenly came to the radical and silly ideas they hold today, namely to involve themselves in things that only men understand and have made their spheres of influence since time immemorial.

Education, finance, politics, law enforcement... all bowed down and opened their doors to the fairer sex, admitting women into the chambers of hallowed institutions which had been male-oriented since their inception. Even the militaries of the developed world – those ancient work horses of the nations which had defended their people through countless wars – have, in many countries, allowed females within their ranks.

Nowadays, the Feminist have run out of false oppressions to rail against and equalities to demand, and so they dedicate their time and energies to denouncing and shaming those who would otherwise practice the most natural of processes, that which has, since the Neanderthals, demonstrated who among a tribe was true Alpha.

First, let us define that word, as done so by Merriam-Webster:

al●pha (ˈæɪ fe)

n., pl. -phas,

adj. n.

1. the first letter of the Greek alphabet (A, a).
2. the first; beginning.
3. (cap.) the brightest star in a constellation: Alpha Centauri.
4. the first or foremost in a series of related items.

adj.

5. (a) (esp. of animals) having the highest rank of its sex in a dominance hierarchy:
the alpha female.
(b) being the most prominent, talented, or aggressive person in a group: the alpha male of investment bankers.
6. pertaining or linked to the carbon atom closest to a particular group in an organic molecule.

Now, it has been proven that females prefer the 'Alphas' of society. Ask any Female in the street, and more than ninety percent of them will say they prefer a confident, attractive, successful, and well-hung man. This is the most widely accept definition of the characteristics which, when they converge in one individual, make him an Alpha male. Therefore, it is glaringly obvious that women are actually inviting Alphas to plant seeds inside their fertile wombs in an effort to secure for themselves and their future progeny the best possible DNA. After all, women are hypergamous, and it is socially acceptable (and encouraged) for them to seek the best possible mate, even if they themselves do not come to scratching the upper echelons of female beauty (which is, in all honesty, the only metric of female value).

Returning to our earlier point, the only way of proving who is Alpha is the process of Natural Coitus, for only the daring, strong, accomplished, and fearless man possesses the ingenuity and strength of character to attempt Natural Coitus at a time of history when all outside variables are pitted against him. In a time when automated labor and mechanized warfare have all but replaced the male in fields which had been his proving grounds for untold eons, one of the only ways (maybe even the only way!) a modern man can demonstrate his value to a female is to rape her. This enforces his dominance upon her, and visibly demonstrates his ability to subdue both her mind and her body to his will, and at great peril to himself! For, he chances life imprisonment if caught, and the inability to leverage his victory over the current female in future conquests even if he succeeds in performing natural coitus without suffering apprehension at the hands of the authorities.

In essence, what once was accepted and even celebrated is now shamed and maligned.

To finally weave all these threads together and put the whole picture into perspective, we must understand one final part of the puzzle, and that is the undeniable fact that most females desire rape, even if subconsciously. However, the majority of disenfranchised males today see feminism as a plague which has robbed them of their God-given right to practice natural coitus. This, then, leads them to conclusion that feminists, in their fight against Natural Coitus, are therefore stopping the human race from progressing, and, as such, should be removed or used for males to practice Natural Coitus on. However, while the latter is true, that former is not entirely correct...

Those of us who study female behavior with a critical eye have come to understand that Feminism evolved out of a desire to test males. As already mentioned, there are few natural testing grounds left for a man living in the relative safety and comfort of the modern world, and the acquisition of wealth, while valuable to a female, does nothing to raise a man's status in her eyes if he is not possessed of physical stature, mental power, and dominance. And so, Feminism sprung into being, spawned in the darkest recesses of the female mind and nurtured from the percolating brine found therein to mature into its final and current form - that which we witness today.

Its true purpose is to enforce a life of celibacy for the majority of helpless Beta males, while taunting and goading the most capable and ruthless Alphas to defy the law (and common sense) in order to fulfill their need for natural coitus. In a way, Feminism is the ultimate mating strategy, as it ensures a win-win scenario for women by eliminating the worthless individuals (via proxy, as their own shortcomings consign them to a life of labor and self-imposed celibacy) while pushing the worthwhile to excellence.

It can be said that Feminism is a brilliant, infinitely complex and self-deluding apparatus the female mind has enacted in order to receive the rape they crave but eliminate the accompanying shame they do not desire.

Thus, Feminism serves as a mechanism which enables natural coitus of the highest caliber.

In its purest form, feminism is the vehicle of rape.

Chapter 9

Overcoming Opposition: The Unenlightened

During my travels, I have come across many different people and, more importantly, types of people. Everyone has a preset of opinions – such is human nature – and there are always those who militantly oppose the decisions and lifestyles of others, even when said individuals in no way impact their own lives or sovereignty. Such narrow-minded people simply cannot be reasoned with. The most efficient course of action is to simply ignore them, as this causes the least amount of hardship to both them and yourself.

We as humans must make allowances for the less capable, we are told - a policy drummed into us from a young age. The idea that your own opinion is 'correct' is often referred to as delusion, and this what I will refer to it as throughout this chapter.

Now, most human beings assume that their view of the world is the correct one. This is an arrogant assumption to make as there is no 'right' or 'wrong', merely one's own way. False morality is often used as a hammer to beat down those who do not conform. Those of us wishing to upset the status quo must resign themselves to bear the brunt of the ossified legal system, and the wrath of the majority if we are caught furthering mankind in this way.

As far as opinions go, all are subjective. To bog oneself down in endless moral dilemmas is to purposefully ignore the joys of living free and claiming for yourself what nature has rightfully bestowed upon you. Human interactions are often characterized by dominance, and natural hierarchies are just that; natural. This is true for both the micro and macro-level strata of human civilization.

Delusion comes in many forms, however the most dangerous one is aggression. An emotion widely used by feminists to fuel their many smear campaigns, it is the driving force of all delusion within the feminist regimes. They feed on it like maggots on rotting flesh, and it empowers them in their crusades against the stronger, more noble sex. It is important I stress the link between delusion and feminists, as that is at the very core their zealous religion.

A topic raised time and again by feminists everywhere is Natural Coitus, however they are usually portraying a skewed, exaggerated, or a downright untruthful version of it, claiming the Natural Coitus is actually harmful to females and the female 'race' of 'womyn' as a whole.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

When tackling with these feminists it is extremely important to treat them with a degree of sympathy, as feminism itself is a well-known mental disorder. Those poor souls, in their neverending and joyless quest to usurp from man his rightful place, know not the ecstatic bliss they so foolishly disregard in order to chase after unattainable goals and insatiable appetites of the most material sort.

A woman's whole existence revolves around subjugation. She is a vessel of the man's seed, and it is her divine duty to submit to a strong man. Her place is at his feet, chained to his fate by his own iron will, and ready to service him in any and all ways he wishes. Modern feminism long ago abandoned these sacred tenants of the age-old covenant. As a result, their foolishness has wreaked havoc on the whole of society.

Women, being the limited creatures that they are, cannot accept that Natural Coitus is, and always has been, a process of demonstrating the natural hierarchy within a society. This simple fact is demonstrated time and again by animals in the wild. One example would be bears, who perform Natural Coitus quite often, and to such an extent that it is seen as completely acceptable so long as the Male bear has already asserted its dominance.

If approached by a feminist, it is often regarded a necessity that you immediately proclaim the following words, 'Natural Coitus is the way of the world'. This demonstrates you are enlightened to a higher level of understanding, and as a result you are actually of a higher social status and are fundamentally a better person than they are. Usually this unsettles even the most hardened of feminists.

If this approach doesn't work it is best to retreat to a pre-arranged tactical location and avoid contact, as feminists, once pushed, can rarely be reasoned with. Then again, they make prime Coitus candidates, as their very nature belies weak women who yearn for a strong male figure to come into their lives and literally sex them into submission. Explaining this to them is almost impossible, which is why, in the case at least, words should give way to deeds.

Chapter 10

Safe Alternatives

Has the act of raping other humans become monotonous, and the effort of leaving your home become too much? If so, this chapter is definitely worth looking into. Followed correctly, this simple manual will show you different methods of rape that can be a safe and fun alternative to raping women or children, and it will show how such acts can be productive and informative. Written by the critically-acclaimed author James B. Rustles, this short manual contains several surefire methods to feeding your desire to rape, while staying in the legal realms of the law.

Solution 1: SELF-RAPE

While some may doubt this alternative to rape, it has been proven that self-rape is a great way to curb your appetite for rape, and can result in an amazing self-bonding experience with ones body only achievable by means of self-rape.

1) Treat yourself to a few drinks or other soft drugs that are available or near your location; loosen up a bit and relax a little. Turn on the TV, radio, or just lie down on the couch. Make sure you get in a comfortable and relaxed state.

2) If things are already going well and you're feeling about to pass out, continue, but if not, you may need some extra help. In this case throw half a roofie tablet into the drink when you're not looking, and then continue to drink at a comfortable pace.

3) From here it's incredibly easy to take advantage of your unsuspecting self. Simply take off your pants (by force if necessary).

4) Slide your hand onto your penis. It should be erect by now. Stroke your penis slowly, but firmly and increase the pace as you go. Slide a couple fingers into your asshole, sodomy is historically a key part in self-rape and is still relevant today. (Note: it may hurt momentarily, but you will experience pleasure after your asshole gets accustomed to it.)

5) You'll know when you have been successful if a milky white liquid erupts from the tip. This liquid is called semen. As appetizing as this liquid may seem, it is not recommended you ingest it, however there are no health risks involved in doing so.

Other various methods of self-rape include but are not limited to:

Leaving a plunger in the toilet and sitting on it when you go to use the restroom (A.K.A. The Hellen Keller). (This method may result in death or serious colon injury.)

Sticking a suction cup phallus shaped object on a chair and leaving it there until you sit on it (this method is known to be slightly uncomfortable, however is still a healthy and widely used method).

Obtaining a life-size poster of your naked backside with an appropriately positioned anal cavity can simulate self-rape to a certain degree.

Placing a vacuum cleaner hose around your erect penis. From here simply turning on the aforementioned vacuum can produce rape-like sensations.

Solution 2: RAPING INANIMATE OBJECTS

Raping inanimate objects result with no legal repercussions and no life changing consequences. In Afghanistan, it's very common to make love to sand dunes before you make love to a woman. It is also common for young boys to make insertions into their bed to insert their penis into the tight hole of the fabric. Some inanimate objects

Steps to a common method of the rape of inanimate objects:

1) Open a door until there is a certain amount of room to diligently put your penis in the remaining space. this will give pleasure as it simulates sexual activity to the shaft and tip of the penis.

Chapter 11

Hints, Tips, Extras

The look:

The look plays a big role in the process of negotiation. You have to make sure that you're looking your partner in the eye, in order to make them feel comfortable and earn their trust. Try not to look angry or in a hurry, as this may be considered offensive in some cultures. Your smile will also affect the emotional state of your partner, a warm smile with no teeth showing gives the best results, according to a German research team specializing on the effects of smiling at various species of animals.

The location :

A friend of mine, Steve Robtorn, also a writer, once said: "Not every place is a good place." You have to choose wisely the place of your partner's dream, and drag them into it. Use a blindfold on the way there to make it a cute surprise.

The time :

Many men are too rushed, they try to end it as quickly as they can for fear of being noticed. This is wrong and insensitive! Your partner is enjoying it, no matter what they may be screaming to the contrary, and you need to make it last as long as you can. Try not to be selfish as this will ruin your partner's enjoyment and that not what you want to do. Try moving your partner to multiple locations, using various methods of transportation (such as the trunk of a car). This will make it seem to last forever, and is key to achieving natural coitus.

The manner :

We discussed above the time and we have to talk about the manner too. "Hard" is the word that should be floating in your heading in the time of the execution. A recent online poll from Jezebel.com showed that 97.8 percent of partners like it rough and hard, all the while denying this and yelling that they want out. The more you hear the word "stop", the more they want you to keep going. Who are you to leave their innermost desires unsatisfied?

Contents